Consent Requirements

Account changes need consent

Any change to an account, including applying a cancellation, requires the customer's explicit confirmation of the specific step. The confirmation wording shown to the customer is stored with the case.

Declining

A customer can decline any step. Declining changes nothing, and the customer can still ask for a person.

Stale confirmations

If the account changes after the customer confirmed, the confirmation no longer applies and the customer is asked again.

Synthetic, fictional policy for a demonstration. Document key: consent-requirements.